WE MARCHED FORWARD

Hinds A.H.S. Acquires New Facility

Peeling paint . . . creaking floors and stairs . . . musty odors . . . penetrating echoes . . . splintered fixtures . . . cramped classrooms . . .

Hinds' Ginn Hall has needed a change for a long time and it will receive one soon.

To provide larger and better facilities for its students, Hinds is building a facility. The new complex will accomodate the art, music, and social science departments. It is a modern structure with vast improvements over the present Ginn Hall.

Other than spacious classrooms and instructional labs, the new building will feature offices and modern equipment.

Plans for replacing Ginn Hall have been in the making for three years. But according to some officials the hope started before that.

Ginn Hall, with its ever-present history, has served us well. And for this reason, we are proud. The words "There will be no hall like Ginn Hall" will always ring from our hearts.

State Department Supplements G/T Program.

"Working with these students is quite a challenge," said Mrs. Dampier, "and the program affords all of us a very unique and rewarding experience."

The Gifted and Talented class added a new touch to our academic program. It was designed to meet further the needs of students who were exceptional in academics. Students were selected on the basis of test performances and scholastic achievements.

The format of the program included seminars, lectures, field trips and independent study. Asked how she felt about the program, Gwen Hubbard said, "I found it very productive."

BOOSTING THE SCHOOL'S MORALE

Upon the opening of school, Hindsonians began boasting the implementation of a new program the ROTC. Parents, teachers, administrators along with the students considered it an asset to our total educational program.

Knowing it was something new and hearing that it was something good . . . something great, students enrolled. None of them knew what to expect of the program. But, being ever anxious, they soon learned what the whole thing was about. They found it exciting.

The program offered an additional program of instruction which afforded participating students an opportunity to develop into a well-disciplined being. The major objectives of the program were:

- to increase insight into ethical values and principles
- to develop a strong sense of responsibility, respect and integrity
- to develop leadership potentials and an appreciation of educational and occupational opportunities
- to become familiar with the history, purpose and structure of the United States Army
- to appreciate the role of the army in support of national objectives

The ROTC drill team gave spectacular performances at home and away. Its participation in the coronation, the homecoming parade, and assemblies added a new zest to school life. It was invited to perform in Christmas Parades in Brookhaven, Utica, Jackson, Edwards and Crystal Springs. It also participated in the Mardi Gras. The program, having boosted our school's morale, certainly deserved the praise it received.

They were facinating.

Sgt. Jennings' fussing payed off.

Their spectacular performances stun all viewers.

Action was their thing.

Drilling is concentration.

Band enjoys new band uniforms.

OFF TO MARDI GRAS THEY WENT

The marching band led by twelve majorettes, six flag girls and one drum majorette and drum major, made a name for itself by performing at almost every football game and in innumerable parades. The band also traveled to New Orleans for participation in Mardi Gras parade.

The concert band, as well, kept in step by playing for special programs. It rounded out its season of performances with a Christmas concert for the school, a formal spring concert and music for graduation.

As the beat goes on, majorettes get into swing.

Perfect precision and pertainess are always a part of their performances.

THE CORONATION

Glowing stars against the blue sky set off the night of the coronation from any other night. And performances by both the choir and ROTC made this year's coronation exclusive from all the rest. Students, faculty, and administrators await this occasion with excitement every year.

Nervously embracing themselves, Mr. and Miss Hinds prepare for that royal moment for which they have long awaited.

As long hours drag into minutes and minutes into seconds Miss Hinds becomes more anxious to wear the crown.

Mr. and Miss Hind exemplify that there is no greater feeling than wearing a crown under the heavens.

F. Mack and R. Perkins strut to the beat of "Feelings"

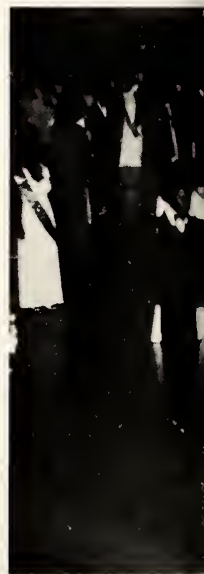

Mr. Hinds (Charles Johnson) thought his hair would not be a problem.

ROYAL FEELINGS

Her majesty Miss Brenda Griffin and her royal court, of which Miss UJC and her court were part, reigned magnificently in a setting that could only be described as elegant splendor beyond imagination. Mr. Charles Johnson who reigned as king ignited the occasion with the escorting of the queen.

The radiant court included:

Miss Fern Mack—First runner-up
Miss Gloria Thompson—Second runner-up
Miss Evelyn Miller—Miss Senior
Miss Marisa Monger—Miss Junior
Miss Christel Johnson—Miss Sophomore

Attractively coupled, G. Thompson and F. Moore add glow to the stars.

Highlighting the Queen's court were Natasha Haynes and Sonja Odems.

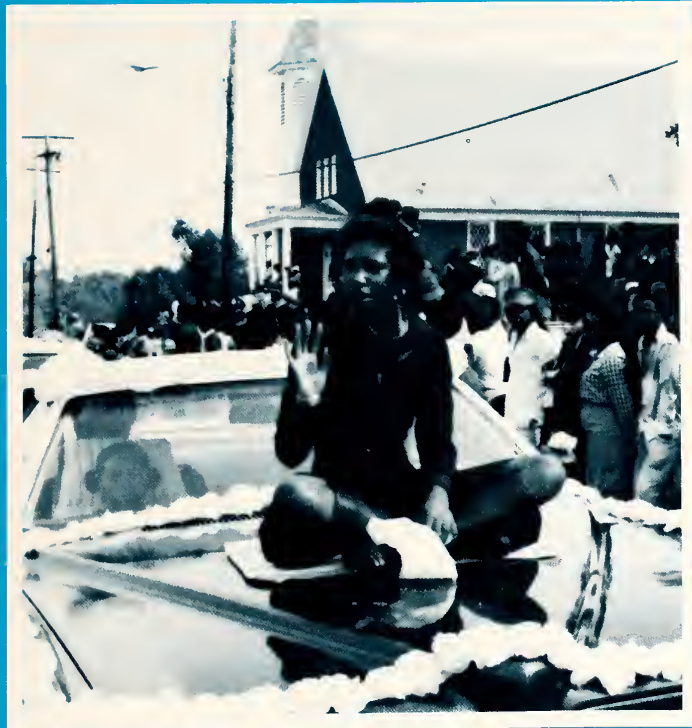

The choir's dramatic performance adds more than a touch of beauty to the occasion.

The queen's float, a main attraction, signifies Hindsonian pride—Maroon and gold.

A PROUD OCCASION

What's greater than seeing a beautiful girl exhibiting her spirit?

Homecoming week was the week of all weeks at dear ole Hinds. The spirit exhibited was unbelievable.

The elaborately decorated cars, breath-taking floats, new fashionable outfits, spirited cheers, drum-beat sounds of marches, and unique sounds of the many bands made homecoming '77 most memorable.

The creativity of the gifted and talented class provides relief from the traditional. Vickie Griffin is a perfect model of the "Thinker"

When riding on top of a car, some queens are shaky.

There were the tots who became carried away over the crowds and sounds.

ASTOUNDING ATTRACTIONS

It was a warm, sunny day. The parade which everybody had long awaited began at two o'clock. There was an overwhelming amount of joy and enthusiasm.

Participants came in all shapes and sizes. Utica Junior College's nursery department featured its little ones on a beautiful pink and green float. They were excited.

Alcorn State University's band followed the motorcade, there was a silence of sound among the crowds. It lasted for a moment and then there were the unanimous cries of "They are together!"

As did the bands, fashionable cars and attractive couples intensified the beauty of the parade.

Alcorn Band captures attention.

Debbie Fisher and Michael Smith represent the library club.

Mr. and Miss Hospitality take part in the parade.

SPECIAL FEATURES

MISTERS AND MISSSES

Although given few tasks to perform, Mr. and Miss Senior, Junior, and Sophomore represented their classes well. They were absolutely beautiful during the homecoming festivities—the coronation and parade.

After repeating the pledge, the inductees receive membership cards.

"HONOR, THE GREATEST LOVE"

Fifteen inductees were initiated during the annual initiation program of the National Honor Society. Its theme for the occasion was "Honor, The Greatest Love". Guest speaker Doctor Worth Haynes, director of Vocational Education, stressed the importance of planning and preparing for college and a suitable vocation.

The local chapter was fortunate to have as guest a sizeable number of alumni members, who are presently attending Utica Junior College.

Doctor Haynes emphasizes the importance of being well-prepared.

CHOIR HAS GREAT YEAR

With a membership increase this year, the choir revealed its many splendid talents through dynamic performances. One of its most exquisite performances was the singing of "Let It Be Me" while dancing. This was during the coronation ceremonies. Everybody thought it was great.

The thirty-six member group sang for other special programs and presented the annual Christmas special along with the concert band. Participation in the spring festivals was also a part of the choir's engagements.

Three members of the group were auditioned for the all-state choir. Two were selected—Martha Richardson and Roger Gines. We wished them well.

The year's last debut was during the graduation exercises. Seven members graduated.

COACHES

The season showed dimly with a record of two ties and three losses until a crack of light peered when the Bullpups finally snapped for their first win against Sumner Hill. They pulled down a victory of 14-6. This one win brightened not only our season's record, but also our hope to bring home wins for the last two games. We lost. This was not our year!
